HEART THRILLING GEMS.

THE INEVITABLE.
I like the man who faces what he must With step triumphant and a heart to cheer,
Who fights the daily battles without fear;
Sees his hope fall, yet keeps unfaltering trust
That God is God; that somehow true and just,
His plans work out for mortals; not a fear
Is shed when fortune, which the world holds dear,
Falls from his grasp; better with love
a crust,
Than living in dishonor; envies not,
Nor loses faith in man; but does his best,
Nor ever murmurs at his humble lot,
But with a smile and words of hope, gives zest.

To every toiler, he alone is great
Who by a life heroic conquers fate.
—Sarah K. Bolton.

NEARER HOME.
When the year has lived its summer,
And the birds have touched their strain
And full ripe for the keen sickle
Bends the heavy bearded grain,
All my feelings gather softly
Like sweet comforters and say,
Summer-time has gone, but autumn
Brings a calmer, fruitful day.

When I, wandering where the summer
Lingered fondly to the last,
See the fairest flower withered
By the first chill autumn blast,
Naught of sadness fills my spirit
That my roses long have blown,
For each leaf that fluttered earthward Tells me I am nearer home.

And when the sunset fades out coldly
And the barren fields look gray,
The last golden fruit all gathered,
The last reaper gone away,
Weary I, and sadly lettering,
Evening shadows softly come,
Touching my sore feet with healing,
As they whisper, "Nearer Home."

And my heart puts off all sadness,
Though the barren fields are gray,
Though the golden fruits are gathered,
And the birds have flown away,
For I'm going where the flowers
Bloom in a perpetual spring,
Where the birds no more are sickle,
But remain to ever sing.

LIVING STONES.
My friend, are you growing discouraged
In fighting the battle of life?
Does it seem in your weakness and darkness,
A hopelessly desperate strife?
Do you fear that your study and labor
Are destined to reap no reward?
Is the goal of your ardent ambition
By numberless accidents barred?
Despair not! true thorough self-culture,
Is never unwisely bestowed:
The stone that is fit for the wall
Will not always be left in the road.

Does it seem an injustice to others
Whose merits and fitness are less,
Through chances of fortune or favor,
Push forward to easy success?
Remember that fortune is fickle,
And friends will not always endure,
So to those who depend upon either
The future is never secure,
The tide that is now in their favor
At some time may ebb as it flowed,
And the stone that is fit for the wall
Will be ruthlessly flung in the road.

The patient life's toilful prices
Are not to be easily won;
Expect not to gather your harvest
The moment the seed has been sown;
A ravens' horde of pretenders,
Will have to be tried and found wanting.

Are you can be tried and found true,
The best by the side of the worthless
Together may lie in the loam;
But the stone that is fit for the wall
Will not always be left in the road.

Go read the encouraging story
Of ancient men in the past,
Who, long in obscurity toiling,
Compelled recognition at last;
Of men, who, in art, or in science,
Or letters, have conquered a place,
Or in the wide realm of invention
Have left a rich boon to their race;
Their names upon history's pages Like stars in the darkness have glowed;
Like stones that were fit for the wall
They were not to be left in the road.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after there was soreness in my right side.
In a short time a lump came and it bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and by fall it was as large as a hen's egg.
I could not go to bed without a hot water bottle applied to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and he told my husband that I would have to be operated on as it was something like a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged but to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away. — Mrs.
R. H. Huxey, 713 Alameda Ave., Galena, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.
It is free and always helpful.

THE BUCKWHEAT CAKE.
"When the frost is on the pumpkin an the fodder's in the shock,"
An you get up in the morning elost about on 6 o'clock
An go down stairs in the kitchen with a kind o' sleepy pace, Where your wife is waiting for you with the griddle in its place,
With the first cake o' the season brown an golden on the plate!
Oh, a feller's never kickin' 'bout the cruel ways o' fate,
For a feelin' comes upon you that no
poet couldn't ruck,
When the grease is on the griddle an
the batter's in the crock!

They can tell about the solemn an the lonesome days o' fall, When the akers are gray and purple an the quails begin to call;
When the trees are trimmed in colors an the chipmunk on the fence
Is a gatherin his harvest for his winter residence,
It's lonesome, mighty lonesome, but a sayin' party wise
Is 'bout a silver line to the cloudless of skies,
An the sunshine strikes a feller like a rude electric shock
When the grease is on the griddle an
the batter's in the crock!

STILL THE LAND OF THE FREE

We break the wall of the Popular Government.

History from the beginning of governments to the beginning of the Republic is a story of the tyranny of the strong, the rich, the powerful. To this day, in nearly all lands except our own, real dominion is exercised openly by a class in Russia autocracy still rules in Germany monarchy "bequeathed by God" still has the final word; in Italy, the nobility; in England, the aristocracy; in Spain, but yesterday, the Church; even in France, clearly a class, the socialists, hold the balance of power. Here we find no such ascendancy. The individual is still his own master at the polls and in his home. Herdism is no more. Personal service is not synonymous with political servitude. There is still the land of the free and whatever differences exist respecting the powers of government relate chiefly, on the one hand, to restriction of suffrage and, on the other, to the elimination of sex qualification. Neither project involves revolution. Each seeks consideration upon the ground of policy, despite the insistence in the second instance, of inherent right. Could the Fathers have been assured of so happy a condition among nine millions of people, can we doubt that they would have felt far more confident than they did feel that the foundations they were laying with such care and foresight as were within their power to exercise would prove indeed everlasting? Assuredly there is no viable breach in the wall of government of and by the people.

LUXURIES AND NECESSITIES.

Frugality caused the downfall of the Roman Empire. Prudence limited England. And we of America are of Anglo, not of Latin stock. By inheritance, then, we are provident as well as thrifty. Our ancestors surely were. To their minds waste was a crime. Frugality was a cardinal principle of their living, but not from choice; from necessity. Had they possessed the means of providing comforts for their families such as now exist, is there reason to doubt that these resources would have been utilized, and to advantage? Moreover, is it not a fact that the luxuries of one epoch become positive requirements of another? Money expended in safeguarding health and strengthening the body is not wasted. Good roads constitute investment, not dissipation. The telephone is not a worthless toy. The motor-car is more than a mere vehicle of pleasure. Both are savers of time and doors of labor. Luck, too, serves a highly desirable purpose in facilitating that intercourse among individuals which tends to strengthen a community by gratifying reciprocal interests.

Public extravagance? Yes. Government in recent years have displayed total disregard of pecuniary responsibility. But is this tendency, however lamentable, more than a phase of rapid growth? And if it is true that the people are becoming so fully acquainted to conditions that, in some sections they regard even the tariff, which is only a tax, as a moral issue, is there not evidence that the people are passing? The present National Administration is heading its best energies to the fort of conservatism. The chief battle of the opposition is Nationalism. What can this mean if not recognition of the change of the tide of providence? Are not such symptoms favorable and full of promising expectancy?

TRUE'S ELIXIR

(ESTABLISHED 1851.)

Makes a sturdy boy of a healthy baby; helps the boy onward into athletic youth; builds strong, virile manhood on youthful vigor and crowns a long life with happy old age.

Why? Because it keeps bodily functions healthy and active. Take it for that foe of health—constipation. It relieves biliousness; restores lost appetite; strengthens a weak stomach; steadies tired nerves; gives a clear head and an optimistic outlook to anyone, and everyone, who takes it. It's been in use three generations and more people use it today than ever before—do you wonder?

The residents of Washington St. were rather surprised on Sunday to see the big maple tree which stands in front of the house owned by Mr. E. Brown and occupied by Mike Dorian, blown down in the high wind, and with such force that the tree fell over onto the ridge pole of the house cutting a hole in the roof. No further damage was done luckily.

"One of the best suppers of the season" was the verdict on the supper served last Thursday night at the Universalist Church Vestry. The dining room was crowded to its utmost capacity early in the evening; the room was tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and the tables were most attractive with their snowy cloths and a centerpiece of fruit. Menu cards added to the appearance and the following was the menu served:

W. B. BOSSERMAN SUCCESSFUL.
After a great deal of effort and correspondence W. B. Bosserman, the popular druggist, has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to make a special half price introductory offer on the regular fifty cent size of their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia.

This medicine is a recent discovery for the cure of all diseases of the stomach and bowels. It not only gives quick relief, but it makes permanent cures.

Dr. Howard's specific has been so remarkably successful in curing constipation, dyspepsia and all liver troubles that W. B. Bosserman is willing to return the price in every case it does not give relief.

So great is the demand for this specific that W. B. Bosserman has been unable to secure only a limited supply, and every one who is troubled with dyspepsia, constipation or liver trouble should call upon him at once.

THIEVES LOST PURSE.

The strange disappearance of 60 hens from a Hampden hen house and the equally strange discovery of a pocketbook containing $75 on a sidewalk close by the hen house door, caused much speculation in that attractive little town a few days ago. Many of the residents took pride in the feeling that Hampden had lost a mystery. Even more interest was awakened the day after the disappearance of the fowls and the finding of the money, however, when the mystery was solved by the appearance of two peddlers at the house in question. They asked permission to visit the henhouse where they made an excited but fruitless search of the premises. It appeared that they had lost something.

The Hampden women had long taken pride in her flock of hens. They have been reared in the most scientific manner and so few along the Penobscot river have laid more eggs. But few have laid so many. They have received the most scientific care and frequently people have traveled all the way from Bangor simply to see the hens and the almost ideal surroundings in which they lived.

Hampden woman visited the henhouse early, as was her wont, bearing a neatly arranged tray on which rested the hens' breakfast. Fowls do not require as much food as human beings and it was therefore quite possible to carry breakfast for 60 upon one tray.

Great was the Hampden woman's astonishment upon opening the hen house door to find the building deserted. Not a single fowl was present. The roosts stood bare and vacant. The nests where the settling hens were wont to sit, were empty. There was not even the faintest clue to point to where they had gone. It was not long before the news of the disappearance of the birds began to be noted through the village and soon friends and neighbors began to appear with their offerings of sympathy and advice.

"If them hens was misse," said one man who lived down the road a few rods, "I'd send to Bangor for Deputy Sheriff Erney Gibson and have him down here on the next car. I'd like to see the mystery that he couldn't ferret out and if them hens is still alive he'll have 'em here again before you know."

But the owner of the birds decided to do nothing hastily and one by one the visitors departed, shaking their heads discouragingly. Neither Deputy Sheriff Erney Gibson nor Sheriff Holmes himself would ever discover what had become of that particular flock of fowls, most of them felt sure.

There was one accident which the owner of the birds had said but little about. While examining the vicinity of the hen house, at the time she had at first discovered that the birds were gone, she had come upon a leather pocketbook, lying upon a pile of sawdust, not far from the door. She picked it up and, to her astonishment, found that it contained $75 in bills. It had evidently been dropped by someone in the darkness.

It was barely half an hour after the last neighbor had left that two men drove up to the door in a peddler's wagon.

"Have you any hens to sell?" one of them asked a trifle eagerly, the Hampden woman thought.

"No," she said, "I had yesterday, but I haven't now. I found 'em of them gone this morning," and she looked heavily at the two strangers who seemed to show signs of suppressed excitement.

"We ran go out and look around the hen house, can't we?" they asked at once in unison.

"I don't mind," said the Hampden woman, suppressing a smile, and the two started without further talk. Through one of the hen house windows the woman saw the men making a hasty but thorough search of the interior. The interior of each nest was carefully examined and every square inch of the floor was gone over. Then they came outside and continued their quest. But they found nothing and in half an hour or so they left dejectedly without having offered any explanation.

Pleasant Reveries—A Column
Dedicated to Tired Mothers

Floating around loose is every unwedded feminine soul is a large, well-developed ideal of the man whose name she would one day wear. And when you get down to the actual facts, the bodily incarnation of one woman's ideal pretty closely fills the outline etched in each sister's soul. Not every one has the courage of her own convictions and her ranks are legion who prefer "most any sort of a man" to a life of unwedded loyalty to an ideal.

About gas in every thousand married exactly the type of individual around whom she had woven cobweb castles and dreamed like indifferent dreams. About 10 per cent. more have such plastic ideals that they are adjustable to any man upon whom the general public and their own inclinations put the stamp of approval; to such it is easy to create a little god with a full-fledged halo from the man they have chosen; false persuaded they willing and by answering to "oh-y." Unfortunately they can't paint that imaginary halo so transparent that all the world can

Every sixteen-year-old girl thinks much of external things, but, after taste and judgment become elevated and matured, it is the character and temperament that count. A sensible woman is too wise to look for saintly attributes in marvellous clothes, but she certainly prefers the art of man who can show up a strong moral record and who doesn't shirk at rough strokes on this or clean bill of health. A man upon whose stock of worldly wisdom she can safely rely, whose good breeding and ease of manner in the most trying position, will win in her certain little thrill of pride; whose other judgmenal, froniess of purpose and decision of character make him leader of men; between whose promises and the fulfillment thereof there's not the space of an eternity; who is frank enough before the irrevocable step is made, to tell her all about his follies, little and great; in whose nature there is no trace of cruelty or selfishness; the petty sort of egotism that allows him to place his power over a defenseless creature, the selfishness that makes them think less of the rights and well-being of others than of the gratification of their own desires.

It is signs and symptoms as to people they are like and doing or get back again.

Gen. A. F. Hawley, of Washington, D. C., writes: "I have used Peppermint Cure and find it very beneficial for kidney trouble, and especially good for colds, coughs, colds and catarrhs of the throat."

William Bailey.

Gen. A. F. Hawley.

Kidney Trouble for Nearly Thirty Years.
William Bailey, East Col. Eng. Co., 62, Union Veteran Legion, and prominently identified with many of the great labor protective associations in Chicago and New York, and secretary of one of the largest associations in the former city, had for nearly thirty years been afflicted with kidney troubles.
Within a short period he has been persuaded to try Peruna, and his present healthy condition is attributed to his judicious use of that great remedy. Washington climate is notoriously bad for kidney and liver troubles, yet by a judicious use of the remedy he is now quite cured and in excellent physical condition.
This brief statement of facts, without exaggeration or hyperbole, appears to tell the whole story, which the Peruna Company is authorized to echo and re-echo, believing, as I do, that by so doing it will be for the general good.
William Bailey, 1318 S. E., Washington, D. C.

Kidneys Affected—Back Weak.
 Dr. M. Brodbeck, Secretary and Treasurer Local Union No. 301, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, writes from 633 E. 55th St., Chicago, Ill., as follows:
 "I have been suffering from a weak back and kidney trouble for some time, and have been able to find relief only through the use of Peruna."
 "During the winter season I usually keep a bottle of your medicine in the house, and by taking a dose at night I am feeling fine the next morning."
 "Some of my friends assure me that Peruna is equally as good for their various ailments as it is for my complaint; the same. A few bottles built up health and strength."
 "I took Peruna for a cold which settled in my kidneys, giving me great pain. In two weeks I was cured and in a few months I was well."

For Liver and Kidneys.
 Dr. W. H. Assheton, Cambridge
 C.H., Vt., writes:
 "Your Peruna has cured me of chronic catarrh of long standing. I thank you so much for your advice. I think you a great medicine. It will do all you recommend it to do. Besides, I recommend it to cure all liver and kidney troubles."

Chronic Kidney Trouble.

But I do know that for kidney trouble and suffering from a weak back it has no equal."

Cold Settled in Kidneys.

Mr. Joseph Kline, 235 East 4th St., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

Jaeger's, Park, E. F. D. 1, Pleasanton, Ga., writes:

"For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys and after taking Pott's I feel like a new man. I think it is the greatest catarrh medicine of the age, and believe it will cure any case of catarrh on record."

Then came the order to the rebuilding of the footbridge, and this was the topic of the day among the people to come. Mr. E. This was seconded by Mr. and the vote carried, and the to their instructions the bridge at three o'clock in the afternoon. Great around town is regular. Following this, a petition for another special session at which the question of repairing the old bridge was taken up. The men who made the petition for the new bridge were the same as those who made the petition for the new bridge question has been taken up for some time at the next session.
